

NEW HORIZONS SOFTWARE

Is your software customized to work the way you do?

Practice management software should treat orthodontists the same way they treat their patients—like individuals. And because orthodontists are individuals with their own ways of doing things, the standard one-size-fits-all approach to practice management software may not work for everyone.

New Horizons Software (NHS) understands that orthodontists have their own ways of working. That's why the company's customizable OrthoExec Advanced Series is built to work the way orthodontists do. OrthoExec Advanced offers the full suite of tools that orthodontists need and expect—plus extras that other companies want you to pay more for—in a single, affordable, no-hidden-strings package. And, the company's service, development and 24/7 support are all based in its recently expanded U.S. headquarters.

All the tools, one easy package

With OrthoExec Advanced, users get all the core features they expect and need. Scheduling, treatment card, insurance, patient information storage, correspondence, full accounts receivables, employee timeclock, patient sign-in, calendar reminders, full reporting features ... it's all there, and then some. For example, store and manage images with Ortho Image-It; send text and email appointment reminders, recalls, marketing emails, e-statements and more with OrthoMinder; and help your practice grow with the Market Center.

Industry-leading innovations

As an established industry innovator, NHS helps save time and cut down costs. The company's latest innovation, Payment Card Industry Data Security Standard (PCI DSS), is now built in to the OrthoExec Advanced Series package, saving users from PCI fees and keeping them in compliance.

Big enough to exceed your expectations, small enough to care

NHS President Joretta Beanland founded the company with one simple goal: to make life easier for orthodontists and their staff by creating advanced, intuitive, easy-to-use software. Today, NHS stands by Beanland's commitment to innovation and service. She personally consults with many clients, and the NHS team members at events around the country are the ones orthodontists and their staff will work with to ensure the software continues to exceed expectations and meet their practices' unique needs.

Setting the standard for 29 years

NHS was founded 29 years ago by orthodontic practice professionals, and the company has a track record users can trust. The company goes out of its way to help orthodontists' practices with tools that make the workday easier and is committed to helping practices thrive. Whether it's training orthodontists and their staff, answering questions via its in-house customer service, or creating customized solutions for your specific needs—from personalized reports to developing your own diagnostic/treatment plan input—NHS is here to support orthodontists' success. ■
